

All Families Are Different

Author(s): Gordon, Sol

General Description:

Softcover American book with black and white drawings depicts a selection of family configurations, including foster families and families with same sex parents. The underlying theme is that no family is "normal" or "perfect". The variety of configurations include differences in family composition, and religious, cultural, racial and socio-economic background, and can be used to support awareness and tolerance of diversity. The author provides suggestions for children who may not be happy; however, these suggestions are simplistic and will require teacher-produced activities to further develop the concepts. The text emphasizes family configurations and differences rather than the qualities that define a family. Teachers will need to supplement this material as well as provide samples of Canadian multicultural and Aboriginal families. Other "family" resources in the Personal Planning K to 3 Grade Collections that can be used to supplement this book are Children Just Like Me, We Are All Related and Families. Not suitable for independent student reading.

Caution:

Author refers to racial differences in terms of "white," "brown," and "yellow" skin.

bc.tobaccofacts: A Tobacco Prevention Resource for Teachers (Grade 6)

General Description:

User-friendly tobacco prevention resource consists of a teacher's guide and three posters. The teacher's guide is organized into twelve sections including six lesson plans. These lesson plans provide cross-curricular links and are designed to encourage active learning. This resource also provides current research, information and references on tobacco. The underlying theme in this resource is anti-tobacco and anti-tobacco industry. Strong statements are made in the sample letter to parents about addiction problems. This resource should be utilized as one component of a comprehensive substance abuse prevention model. Teachers will need to supplement and extend lessons on peer relationships and self-esteem. In addition, teachers will need to expand and develop the assessment and evaluation activities. This resource was distributed to all elementary schools in September 1998. Additional copies are available free of charge from Prevention Source B.C. Additional support for teachers includes a video for grades 4 to 7 that provides an orientation to using the resources. Please contact Prevention Source B.C. Also, orientation workshops may be arranged by contacting the Regional Tobacco Reduction Coordinator via the local health unit.

bc.tobaccofacts: A Tobacco Prevention Resource for Teachers (Grade 7)

General Description:

Tobacco-prevention resource consists of a teacher's guide, a six-minute video and three posters. The teacher's guide provides background information, current research and seven lesson plans. The lesson plans provide cross-curricular links and are designed to encourage active learning. The video presents 12 short anti-smoking commercials. The underlying theme in this resource is anti-tobacco and anti-tobacco industry. Strong statements are made in the sample letter to parents about addiction problems. This resource should be utilized as one component of a comprehensive substance abuse prevention model. Teachers may need to supplement and extend the lessons on peer relationships and self-esteem. Caution:

- Teachers need to be aware that the example cited in the student handout (Decisions! Decisions! Decisions! - page 41 of the teacher's guide) seems to single out Aboriginal students unnecessarily.
- Some of the ads on the video are graphic in nature and will require teacher previewing and further classroom discussion.
- The talking circle activities assume a high level of trust in the classroom.

Career Connections Series I and Series II

General Description:

Two collections, comprising a total of twelve books, are designed to help students evaluate their skills, interests and experiences in terms of investigating career choices. Each book surveys ten different occupations related to each of the following: human body, outdoors, environment, living things, math and computers, how things work, working with your hands, performing arts, sport fitness, working with people, entrepreneurs, film, video and photography. Career information is arranged in an interview-style personal profile of a person employed in an occupation. Each career includes planning activities to encourage exploration. These collections provide exposure to a wide range of career choices, particularly for students with a limited frame of reference. An accompanying teacher's resource book for each collection includes background information, reproducible career investigations and curriculum-based activities. In addition, a "Personal Explorations" module is included. This provides a ten-hour delivery format for career education at the transition years level.

Destination 2020

General Description:

This resource consists of a teacher's guide and a set of occupation profiles. It is designed to help students recognize the many skills they are acquiring now and how these skills will be useful in their future careers. The teacher's guide provides the scope of the five sections of the program, a set of activities for each section, copies of the student handouts and some large posters. The sections deal with skills and interests, personalities, occupations and looking to the future. The occupation profiles are grouped according to three categories of interest (people, information, things) and colour-coded by favorite subject areas. A web site is available that provides an on-line version of the activity handouts and profiles. Teachers will need to develop their own assessment strategies. This resource is also recommended for Grades 8 and 9.

Families

Author(s): Bailey, Debbie

General Description:

Book features simple text and engaging colour photographs of families in a variety of natural settings. Rather than focussing on the family unit, the book explores, in separate sections, young children's relationships with different family members: moms, dads, brothers, sisters, grandpas and grandmas. This resource can be used to complement the other "family" resources in the Personal Planning K to 3 Grade Collections: All Families Are Different, Children Just Like Me and We are All Related.

Focus on Bullying: A Prevention Program for Elementary School Communities

General Description:

Resource is designed to assist schools in developing and implementing a detailed action plan to strengthen the physical, social and psychological safety of schools and to reduce the incidence of bullying. The resource is divided into four sections: "The Nature of Bullying in the Elementary Schools," "Developing a School-Wide Plan for Bullying Prevention," "Responding Directly to Bullying Situations" and "Addressing Bullying Through Classroom Lessons." In addition, a resources section lists print and multimedia resources and government agencies that can be used to support implementation of the school-wide plan. The lesson plans, designed for use once the school plan is in place, deal with defining bullying, the school plan and dealing with bullying. One copy of the resource has been distributed to all elementary and middle schools in British Columbia. Additional copies may be purchased from Office Products Centre.

Food Sense: Personal Planning for Healthy Eating

General Description:

Resource package consists of a teacher guide, a variety of program support materials, class sets of student practice booklets, three-day food records and parent guides. The package is designed to help students develop sound food choice habits and is based on Canada's Food Guide to Healthy Eating, Revised, which emphasizes the importance of eating a variety of foods from the four food groups. The easy-to-use teacher guide consists of ten 40-minute lessons. Additional teacher support materials include a sizing up servings poster and accompanying teaching tips, an ethnic foods list, a master post-test, and a copy of Canada's Food Guide to Healthy Eating, Revised. Student practice booklets provide a variety of activities as well as nutrition information, and three-day record pamphlets are for students to track the amounts and types of food consumed. The parent guide explains the goal of the Food Sense program and encourages parents to support their children in developing sound food choice habits.

APPENDIX B: PERSONAL PLANNING K TO 7 • Grade Collections

Human Growth, Fifth Edition

General Description:

Through a series of questions, observations and portrayal of feelings of a wide variety of young people, this twenty-two-minute video explains maturation and the reproductive system. Graphics and real-life photography show fetal development and the reproductive system. There is an emphasis on making responsible choices in personal relations and parenthood. The articulate young people touch on the majority of questions and issues common to this age group. This video is suitable for a mixed audience. The teacher's guide provides the video script, objectives, vocabulary and pre- and post-viewing questions.

Caution:

There is a diagram showing sexual intercourse, and a brief mention of masturbation, as it relates to ejaculation.

The Make It Real Game

General Description:

The Make It Real Game career education classroom role-playing simulation kit provides lesson plans and materials for at least twelve classroom sessions designed to meet the Canadian National Life/Work Centre competencies and performance indicators for personal management, work exploration and career building in elementary schools. The detailed lesson plans call for active participation by students in cooperative groups, accommodate a variety of learning styles and encourage critical thinking and creative analysis. Incorporates cross-curricular opportunities and includes assessment and evaluation strategies. Full implementation of this extensive program could consume a considerable amount of classroom time. While lessons are well scripted, facilitator preparation and training is important: the facilitator's guide (page 15) recommends one day of facilitator training. A special offer is currently available, temporarily reducing the cost per kit to $70.00. This special offer includes a Facilitator's Kit and an Awareness Kit (40 Student Kits and 40 information brochures).

Author(s): Mangham, C.; Lalonde, J.

General Description:

Resource, designed to meet the substance abuse prevention outcomes of Personal Planning, consists of two components: A Teacher's Manual for Substance Abuse Prevention Education and a student booklet, Mission: RAD (Research About Drugs). The manual provides four activity-centred lessons dealing with medical and non-medical drug use; healthy positive alternatives to drug use; and a decision-making model. It also includes suggestions for enrichment, cross-curricular connections, assessment and a section for collaborating with parents. The student booklet features Zorga, an alien, who is conducting research into drug use. Similar resources, Making Decisions 6 and Making Decisions 7, are also recommended.

The Play Real Game

General Description:

The Play Real Game consists of a teacher's guide, poster, overhead transparencies, maps and occupation sheets. An optional Student Kit, or portfolio, is available for purchase but is not essential. In a series of 10 lessons, many of which require more than one class period the students assume roles and occupations as they experience work related situations in the creation of their simulated community. The activities allow students to explore education, essential services, community needs and associated occupational roles. The students create a town with services and businesses in five distinct neighbourhoods, and collaborate in a final project by presenting their town to a fictional prospective business which is considering locating in their town. Although there are a variety of occupations included in the simulation, they are not broad enough to address cultural or socio-economic issues. A special offer is currently available, temporarily reducing the cost per kit to $70.00. This special offer includes a Facilitator's Kit and an Awareness Kit (40 Student Kits and 40 information brochures).

RoadSense Kids Passport to Road Safety
Teaching Guide, Kindergarten - Grade 3

General Description:

Teaching guide comprises eighteen activities organized into eight sections; successful completion of all activities in a section earns a Road Safety sticker for the student's passport (set of passports included). Each activity is cross-referenced to learning outcomes for Personal Planning as well as English Language Arts, Fine Arts, Mathematics and Social Studies. Assessment criteria for road safety learning are included, along with handouts, student worksheets and teaching suggestions. Some of the activities require cooperation of parents or guardians, and/or advance planning in the local community. The safety topics are: pedestrian safety, traffic sign recognition, use of seat belts, passenger safety in cars and buses, bicycle safety and scooter/skateboard safety.

Second Step Pre/K, Third Edition

General Description:

Second Step proactively teaches empathy, emotion management and social problem solving. This third edition, revised in 2002, has no major conceptual changes. New components include an administrator's guide, the Be-Calm Bunny, a sing-along CD, and a family overview video. The video would be most effective when supported by a school-use plan. Publishers web site provides professional support: <http://www.cfchildren.org/>. The lessons have been reorganized into three units as follows: empathy training, emotion management and problem solving. Teacher's guide provides teaching strategies to address diverse learning and cultural needs. Teachers who have been using older editions of Second Step may require time to become familiar with the new components and organization.

Second Step Grade 1, Third Edition

General Description:

Second Step proactively teaches empathy, impulse control, problem solving and anger management. This third edition, revised in 2002, extends the concepts and skills from previous editions. Now packaged by individual grade level, new components include a comprehensive teacher's guide, an administrator's guide, unit overview cards, a classroom video and a family overview video. Lessons are age-relevant and deal with common social and emotional issues for grade 1 students. The teacher's guide provides an annotated bibliography linking quality literature with specific lesson concepts. The administrator's guide provides strategies for developing a proactive school-wide plan for social and emotional development that includes parental involvement and education. The unit overview cards provide useful background information and support for teachers. The classroom video introduces the main concepts for each unit and provides thought provoking discussion questions. The short vignettes are realistic and engaging. The family use video would be most effective when supported by a school-use plan. This edition is very well-organized and easy to use; however, teachers who have been using older editions will still require some time to become familiar with the organization.

APPENDIX B: PERSONAL PLANNING K TO 7 • Grade Collections

SpaceStation 5-5-3-2

General Description:

Resource, consisting of CD-ROM for Macintosh and Windows and an accompanying teacher's guide, invites students to visit an intergalactic nutritional training centre. Eight interactive modules introduce students to the food groups and recommended serving sizes as outlined in Canada's Food Guide. Students examine their personal eating habits and create a plan to improve their personal food choices. The teacher's guide provides a number of extension activities and a review test. Additional components include a poster of serving sizes and a class set of follow-up food records. This resource also can be used to support the nutrition outcome for PE and with teacher assistance can also support Healthy Living outcomes in Personal Planning for Grades 4 and 5.

Sticks and Stones

General Description:

Seventeen-minute Canadian video with accompanying viewing guide features children aged five to twelve describing their families, including how they feel when they are teased or bullied because their parents do not represent traditional gender roles. The children provide various definitions for "family" and demonstrate by example families with two fathers and two mothers. In classroom vignettes children discuss possible reasons for name calling, and participate in a lesson dealing with gender stereotypes. The video gives some background information on various slang terms such as "faggot" and "gay". The video also includes discussion about how to make schools safe for children who may be gay or lesbian or who may live in families with same sex parents. The viewing guide provides sample activities for exploring the topics of gender stereotypes and family diversity, and provides brief suggestions for safer school activities. Although this video closely supports learning outcomes in several Personal Planning curriculum organizers for Grade 6, teachers may find it valuable to show this video to other elementary grade levels.

Caution:

Teachers should preview this video to ensure that it is appropriate to meet individual classroom needs.

Sticks and Stones: Let's Talk About Teasing

General Description:

The 29-minute video and accompanying teacher's guide discuss teasing situations and strategies for victims to confront teasers positively. The video features a variety of vignettes that typify some of the plights faced by students during the school day. Each vignette is punctuated by comments from students who candidly discuss their own experiences. The video is organized to facilitate classroom discussions. The teacher's guide provides extension activities, including role-plays, worksheets and classroom discussion topics.

Student WorkSafe 6

General Description:

Revised program, now on CD-ROM, contains both the lesson content from the previous print version as well as new content on basic emergency procedures. Module 1, "Hazard Recognition," deals with the three steps which are a common theme throughout this resource, K to 12: "See It" (Recognize); "Think It" (Evaluate); "Do It" (Control). Module 2, "Emergency Procedures," is designed to introduce students to basic emergency procedures and first aid skills. The third module provides additional instructional strategies, including a case study format. Each module includes teaching strategies, visuals, handouts and assessment strategies. Most lessons require one hour.

Teachers can download and print the entire resource package from the CD-ROM or from the WCB web site:
<http://youngworker.healthandsafetycentre.org/s/Resources-Educators.asp>. Free copies of the CD-ROM, laminated visuals and videotapes (for Grades 7, 8 and 10 to 12) are available upon request from 1-888-621-7233.

Student WorkSafe 7

General Description:

Revised program, now on CD-ROM, contains the lesson content from the previous print edition, with the addition of new hazard recognition visuals and some new video support activities. An accompanying video that can be ordered separately, for Grades 7 and 8, consists of four short scenarios: "Quibbling Rivalry," "Sticky Situations," "The Hearing Video" and "Walkman Generation"; the last three of which are for Grade 7. Module 1, "Transferable Skills," is designed to help students understand that safety is a transferable skill. Module 2, "Safe Behaviours," is designed to help students identify unsafe behaviours and how they contribute to an unsafe workplace situation. Module 3, "Hearing Protection," is designed to help students understand the immediate and long term consequences of noise damage to the ear. A set of additional instructional strategies provides extension to the video segment "Sticky Situations". Each module includes teaching strategies, visuals, handouts and assessment strategies. Most lessons require one hour.

Teachers can download and print the entire resource package from the CD-ROM or from the WCB web site:
<http://youngworker.healthandsafetycentre.org/s/Resources-Educators.asp>. Free copies of the CD-ROM, laminated visuals and videotapes (for Grades 7, 8 and 10 to 12) are available upon request from 1-888-621-7233.

Talking About Touching - Grade 1 to 3, Third Edition

General Description:

This edition, revised in 2001, reflects major concept revisions. Although it still focusses on teaching children basic personal safety skills, the following changes are noted. The No-Run-Tell Rule has been replaced by the Safety Steps. There is less focus on 'stranger danger' and more focus on applying a single safety strategy for all situations. Topics still include fire safety, bicycle safety, gun safety, personal safety, assertiveness and harassment. Three separate sets of lesson cards, one for each grade level, consist of black and white photographs on one side and teaching suggestions and discussion questions on the other. The teacher's guide consists of a program outline, background information and research ideas for implementation, including take home letters for parents. Teachers should check whether school districts have standard parent permission forms. The student handouts and suggested literature will need supplementing. A good video for parents and guardians, What Do I Say Now, is also included. It provides guidelines for talking to children about personal safety and how to respond to disclosure. Additional components (Big Book, small book and audio cassette) and corresponding lessons are not recommended. Teachers will need to develop their own assessment strategies

Caution:

Teachers should be prepared for disclosure. Please refer to the B.C. Handbook for Action on Child Abuse and Neglect for a current description of the legislation and procedures for reporting.

We Are All Related - A Celebration of Our Cultural Heritage

General Description:

This softcover collection of 28 case studies, written and illustrated by the students of G.T. Cunningham Elementary School, represents many cultures of origin. Each study features student comment, elder advice and a family collage, with language of origin below each collage. The inter-generational and inter-cultural project encouraged students to explore ideas of history and cultural heritage resulting in a celebration of peace, tolerance and environmental awareness. This resource can be used to complement the other "family" resources in the Personal Planning K to 3 Grade Collections: All Families Are Different, Children Just Like Me and Families. Not suitable for independent student reading.

What Kids Want to Know About Sex and Growing Up

General Description:

Fifty-five-minute video deals with puberty, sex and sexual reproduction in a candid and reassuring manner through a series of discussions and questions between two sex educators and "real" kids. The accompanying teacher's guide provides a script of the video. The suggested classroom activities are not recommended as they are too simplistic.

Caution:

There are frank discussions of masturbation and homosexuality. Sexual intercourse is graphically depicted with diagrams.

Working It Out: Tools For Everyday Peacemakers

General Description:

Introductory conflict-management skills are taught in ten core modules, each consisting of a main activity with supporting cross-curricular collaborative activities with multiple-grade options, suggestions for school and family, work assignments, and a resources list. Additional components include a Getting Started module, a Teacher Resource module and a Family Resources module.

Caution:

Some scenarios and suggested solutions may seem overly simplistic to students.
