Ancient Worlds - Outlooks 7

Toutant, A.; Doyle, S.

General Description:

Ancient Worlds, consisting of a student text and comprehensive teacher's resource, introduces students to the story of the past, while making connections to the students' lives today. The text provides opportunities for students to investigate the struggles and achievements, and the success and difficulties of living in ancient civilizations such as Mesopotamia, Egypt, India, China and Rome. The concluding activity has students take action to improve their world by creating a plan to address global community problems or issues. The teacher's resource provides planning tips, teaching strategies, criterion-referenced assessment tools and multi-use reproducibles. This resource is part of the "Outlooks" series, developed by BC educators and writers to fit both the general philosophy and the specific learning outcomes of the BC Social Studies curriculum.

Exploration and the Fur Trade in the Aboriginal Pacific Northwest

General Description:

Glossy, poster-size map shows the locations of the Hudson's Bay Company and North West Company Forts, along with the dates they were established and in use. It attempts to identify the Aboriginal language groups that reside alongside the forts. Also plots the exploration dates and routes of early explorers, such as Cook, Vancouver, Quadra, Perez, Thompson, Mackenzie and Lewis and Clark.

Caution:

Some inconsistencies and omissions re First Nations references. It is unclear whether the names listed refer to groups of people or linguistic groups. Some misspellings noted (e.g., Tagish, not Taglish; Shishalh, not Sechelt).

From Time Immemorial

Silvey, D.

General Description:

Comprehensive student text and teacher's guide focus on the culture and history of the Aboriginal people of the Pacific Northwest Coast of British Columbia. The teacher's guide supports the prescribed learning outcomes with an aboriginal perspective. Teachers will need to supplement the suggested activities as some are repetitive and involve filling in the blanks. Also, some suggested activities have little correlation to the chapter topics, e.g., let's make a quilt.

Caution:

There are no guidelines provided regarding the protocols involved in contacting local First Nations communities and elders. Teachers should contact their local Aboriginal Education Coordinator for assistance in gaining the support of the local Aboriginal community. Some art activities are not properly introduced and contain incorrect information e.g., p. 49, Visual Arts 2.

Our Beginnings - Outlooks 4

Sterling, S.

General Description:

Our Beginnings, consisting of a student text and comprehensive teacher's resource, introduces students to the Aboriginal peoples of Canada. The text explores how Aboriginal peoples lived in the days before Canada was formed, then looks at the arrival of early European explorers and the impact they had on Aboriginal cultures. The teacher's resource provides planning tips, teaching strategies, criterion-referenced assessment tools and multi-use reproducibles. This resource is part of the "Outlooks" series, developed by BC educators and writers to fit both the general philosophy and the specific learning outcomes of the BC Social Studies curriculum.

Our Communities - Outlooks 3

Sterling, S.

General Description:

Our Communities, consisting of a clearly written student text and comprehensive teacher's resource, comprises three major themes: "Community Life," "Community Histories" and "Canadian Communities." Each theme is developed through four inquiries, presented as "Big Questions" in the student text. The teacher's resource provides planning tips, teaching strategies, criterion-referenced assessment tools and multi-use reproducibles. This resource is part of the "Outlooks" series, developed by BC educators and writers to fit both the general philosophy and the specific learning outcomes of the BC Social Studies curriculum. Note: The term "community" is used in varying ways throughout the text. The depiction of Canada on a world map is not to scale in some instances.

Tapestry Level 4

General Description:

Level 4 of the "Tapestry" series consists of four student books, Islands, Generations, Celebrations and Marketplace, with an accompanying comprehensive Teacher Resource Package that includes teacher guides for each student book and three generic documents for the series (A Guide To The Program, Mapping Skills Handbook, and Assessment Handbook.) Islands explores characteristics of island life in Canada and around the world. Celebrations explores the universal nature of celebration occurring within families, cultural groups, communities and nations. Generations is a student project investigating personal past as well as Canadian daily life 100 years ago. Marketplace explores ways that people exchange goods and services. The teacher guides provide an overview of the unit, learning expectations, teaching plans, reproducible worksheets and suggestions for assessment and additional resources.
